WEATHER MAN CHANGES HIS
BILL OF FARERelents and Indicates Good Weather for
Lee Co. Fair

The weather man was very generous in his offerings for the opening day of the Amboy fair today, with a fair and cooler brand of atmosphere, which started an influx of motor cars to the fair grounds this morning. Everything was in readiness for the crowds who will take over the grounds for the remainder of the week. The midway presented the best lineup of attractions that has been set up on the grounds in many years. These are of the highest type and present a very neat and attractive appearance. Ike Faust of Carmi, Ill., one of the veterans of the concession game in fairs, who has been coming to Amboy for years, was one of the first to set up his tents, seven in all.

The Divilbries Enterprise Company of Warren, Ill., who have furnished the rides at the fair for several seasons, moved into the park Sunday with their whole bill of feature rides, which are transported in a heavy motor train. There were any number of novelty stands about the grounds and other were moving in at the last minutes and searching for space to set up their tents.

Food Inspector Benz of Peoria, recently appointed to this district, arrived at the fair grounds early yesterday and spent the day inspecting all of the tents offering foodstuffs for sale to the public. "This is an exceptionally clean fair in Amboy, and I have not been able to find a single violation of the pure food laws," he said after completing his investigation. "The public is entitled to the protection afforded through the pure food department and every county fair is subjected to these investigations and inspections."

In more ways than one, the fair this year excels that of many years past. The horse stables have not been able to accommodate the entries in the various race events, and it has been necessary to convert one of the cattle sheds into a utility barn, which now houses racing stock, with every stall filled. Tents have also been pitched outside to cover equipment and provide every bit of available space to the horses.

Big Swine Exhibits.
The hog barns present the largest showing of swine in the history of the fair. Monday afternoon, every pen in the big new stable was taken and workmen were busy setting up portable and temporary pens for exhibitors. Last evening all of these were filled and there remained fifty head of show stock in the Illinois Central stock yards, awaiting space. The cattle barns experienced a similar overcrowding and it is quite probable that large tents may be set up to accommodate the overflow.

In the grove back of the midway, the big trees cover a sea of canvas. Here are located the exhibits of agricultural machinery, which is the largest shown at the fair in many years, as well as automobiles, trucks and many other articles which tend to lighten the burdens of the farmer.

Today was "Kid's Day" and it was an ideal one. The little folks commenced to throng the park this morning, the majority coming with well-filled baskets, going prepared to spend the entire day. The fair association had prepared a full program of entertainment for the youngsters with a full bill of races and contests, which were scheduled for this afternoon.

Good Opening Races.
Tomorrow opens the racing program which will continue through Thursday and Friday. The entry list is one of the largest in many years and there are indications that there will be very little scratching. The Dixon Chamber of Commerce stake race, coming under the 217 paching class, will be the feature on tomorrow afternoon's card. There is a trotting race for entries three years old or under, which comes second on the list.

MAYOR OF OHIO TOWN WOUNDED IN HEAD DURING FIGHT WITH NEGROES; BLACKS SURROUNDED

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Sharonville, O., 20 miles north of Cincinnati, last night was the scene of an exchange of shots between whites and negroes in which Henry McGrew, mayor of the town, received a scalp wound and Hugh Bestal, a Negro, was wounded probably fatally.

Earlier in the night negroes robbed a man near Lockland, a neighboring place, and fled in the direction of Sharonville. Later four negroes arrived at the latter place and began

"FUGITIVE" CONVICT FOUND HIDING WITHIN WALLS OF PRISON; NEARLY STARVEDHad Had But Two Bits of Bread During Week's Hiding

Stateville, Ill., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Half starved after hiding eight days under the tin shop, a small temporary structure in the new penitentiary enclosure here, awaiting an opportunity to escape, Clarence Langford, Adams county slayer, was captured last night by Warden Elmer Green and two keepers.

Langford saved his way out of his prison cell a week ago and has remained hidden in his crowded subterranean quarters since, except for twice when he emerged at night and sought an opportunity to scale the 30 foot wall around the penitentiary.

The convict was weak from lack of food and was suffering from a sprained ankle, which he received when he dropped from the third tier of cells. He made no resistance but was rather happy to return to even the solitary cell house. During the eight days of his "freedom," Langford had eaten two slices of bread which he had taken with him, he said. A water pipe near his hiding place provided him with water.

Langford was sent to Chester penitentiary May 19, 1919, for the slaying of an Adams county deputy sheriff. He was transferred to Stateville in May, 1923. Warden Green will question the convict in an effort to learn where he received the saw he used in gaining his release from his cell.

STABILIZATION OF PRICES BIG
FARMERS' NEEDRather Than Loan, in Opinion of Former
Sec. of Ag.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Stabilization of the price of the products of the farmers is what they need rather than $100,000,000 loan fund, in the opinion of E. T. Meredith of Des Moines, former Secretary of Agriculture.

Mr. Meredith expressed his opinion in addressing a local farm organization and his views becoming known when an abstract of his address became public. It was reported in New York recently that a plan for a $100,000,000 credit for farmers was to be considered by President Coolidge.

"There is no more need for institutions for financing the farmer," Mr. Meredith said, "than there is for financing city business. Any businessman with stable security can find necessary money. The farmer's security under our present system is not stable. No one knows what corn, now worth 70 cents, will be worth six months hence. Possibly one dollar, possibly but 35 cents. The sound banker cannot speculate as to the value of the collateral he takes."

"The greatest aid to the financing of the farmer would be to stabilize his collateral, his corn, cotton, etc."

Grange's First Movie
in its Premiere Soon
Chicago, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Word comes from New York that the motion picture starring Harold "Red" Grange, the world's most talked of and written about football player, will soon receive its premiere. Invitations have been issued the critics asking them to look at the pre-views of the red head's efforts.

It is deemed most appropriate to reveal the "Galloping Ghost's" first screen effort in the fall when football talk fills the air.

In the meantime the farmers in central Illinois are sponsoring a movement to name a highway leading to Champaign, the "Red" Grange highway. By this means it is the idea to perpetuate the name of the Wheaton youth, whose sensation runs while in an Illinois uniform thrilled thousands.

It is deemed most appropriate to reveal the "Galloping Ghost's" first screen effort in the fall when football talk fills the air.

MELLETT MURDER IS THROWN INTO
FEDERAL COURTSSuit for Damages by the Widow Takes Case to
U. S. Court

Canton, O., Aug. 24.—(AP)—The Mellett murder case is to be thrown directly into the federal courts today with the filing by Mrs. Don R. Mellett, widow of the slain editor, of a civil suit for $100,000 damages against Louis Mazer and Ben Rudner.

Prospects for Prosecuting Attorney McClintock of Stark county to obtain outside legal assistance for his grand jury inquiry into the case were shattered today by Assistant Attorney General Griswold at Columbus.

CHIEF IS FIRED
Canton, O., Aug. 24.—(AP)—The ax which yesterday cut down three of Canton's official heads, has not yet been sheathed and Mayor Swarts may be expected to wield it still further within the next few days.

Last night the mayor dismissed Chief of Police S. A. Lengel. Yesterday he "fired" Brice Jansen and John Burris, members of the civil service commission.

The deposed chief has right of redress before the new civil service commission composed of George Melbourne and Chas. Flory, appointed by the mayor yesterday, and James Albrecht, another Jansen appointee who has previously voted to oust Lengel, Jansen and Burris at a hearing against the chief last spring voted for reinstatement.

Outgrowth of Murder
The dismissals are either the outgrowth of or have been influenced by the investigation into the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, and the inquiry into the alleged liquor conspiracy.

Mellett editorially had vigorously attacked Lengel and had followed with attacks on Jansen and Burris when they failed to vote for the chief's removal. Among the charges preferred against Lengel last night was one that he "bungled" the murder investigation.

Lengel is expected to carry his fight to the commission.

Other charges against Lengel are that he has been derelict in his duties, particularly in having countenanced bootleg activities and in having maintained a too intimate contact between the underworld and the police department.

Want Special Prosecutor
Mayor Swarts had not announced his choice of a successor to Lengel.

While the police department reconstruction appeared imminent, investigators into the murder were wondering if J. R. Roach, Chicago criminal lawyer, was to be successful in obtaining the chief's reinstatement.

LOS ANGELES IS

AIR SCIENTISTS

Complete Conquest of Air Object of Experiments Now

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 24.—(AP)—The Navy dirigible Los Angeles is in effect a 700 foot test tube with which aviator-scientists are conducting experiments looking toward eventual complete conquest of the air by man.

Luxurious ocean air lines for tourist service twice as fast as steamships, giant airships several thousand feet long to carry airplanes for war, improvements in radio and weather forecasting and reduction in cost and maintenance—these are but a few of the results being sought by experiments at the air station.

These men are working under direction of Captain E. S. Jackson, commandant of the station and Lieutenant Commander R. E. Rosendahl, commander of the Los Angeles. "We are experimenting all the time," Commander Rosendahl said today. "We have to work largely by trial and error."

FUNERAL PLANS FOR VALENTINO
AWAIT BROTHER

Film Star Wanted to Die
Young He Told His Producer

New York, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Published reports hinting that Rudolph Valentino had been poisoned brought from District Attorney Pecora today a statement that his office had received no definite information on the matter and that he would take no action until official proof was presented.

Mr. Pecora's statement follows: "If any responsible party brings us proof tending to show the commission of crime the matter will receive the official attention of this office. We are not going off on any rumor or idle gossip."

The death certificate filed yesterday at the board of health gave as the cause of death a ruptured gastric ulcer and general peritonitis, with septic pneumonia and septic endocarditis (an affection of the heart tissues) as contributing causes.

The funeral of Valentino will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning from the Actors Chapel of St. Malachi's church in West 49th street.

Following the services the body will be taken to a receiving vault at Woodlawn cemetery if Valentino's brother hasn't arrived from abroad. If the brother is here in time for the funeral the body will be turned over to him.

S. George Ullman, Valentino's manager said he would try to persuade the brother to have him buried in Hollywood, Calif.

To Lie in State.
The body of Valentino will lie in state from 4 o'clock this afternoon until midnight and thereafter on Wednesday and Thursday from 9 a. m. to midnight under directions given today by Mr. Ullman.

While hundreds of men, women and children waited outside the undertaking establishment on Broadway in the hope of being admitted, the body, dressed in formal evening clothes was removed to the gold room in the funeral parlors. The body is in a simple casket surrounded by yellow gladioli and surmounted by a single red rose.

A special squad of policemen was assigned to keep the crowd in order, people gathering in the street before 8 o'clock this morning.

New York, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Rudolph Valentino wanted to die young, and today the body of the 31 year old "perfect lover" of the screen lay in an undertaker's parlor, magnet for a crowd that blocked traffic. Funeral plans are awaiting arrival from Italy of his brother.

From his native Italy to Los Angeles, tributes flowed in to the dead actor, who came to America, practically penniless, got a job as a gardener and last year earned and spent $1,000,000.

John W. Considine, producer of his pictures, said in Los Angeles: "Valentino several times remarked to me 'I shall die young. I know it, and I shall not be sorry. I would hate to live to be an old man.'"

Italian admirers in Los Angeles have started a movement for funds to erect a monument to Valentino, and Pola Negri, who announced some time ago that she expected to become his third wife, is prostrated.

Marian Benda, Polles girl who was Valentino's companion in New York the evening before he went to Polytechnic hospital for the double operation that preceded his death, said here that Valentino had no intention of remarriage.

"Was Not Engaged"
"He was not engaged to marry Miss Negri," said Miss Benda.

"We had a discussion on marriage recently, and he told me that he wouldn't marry again until he was ready to give up his career."

Valentino died of septic poisoning that entered his heart and lungs. Internal disorders which brought about his death began six weeks ago, his physicians explained.

Rumors that there were other factors in his death were vigorously denied.

EXTRA
PITTSBURGH
BANK SCENE
OF EXPLOSIONMysterious Blast in Heart of Downtown
District

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 24.—(AP)—His demand for $2,000 rejected, a man dressed in working clothes set off a bomb in the Farmers Deposit Savings bank here late this afternoon. The interior of the institution was wrecked and the explosion resulted in the death of at least one man, critical injuries to two others, and cuts and bruises to a score of pedestrians who were passing the institution.

The bomber, said by bank officials to be of foreign appearance presented a note to D. J. Jones, a teller demanding the money. Jones summoned other officials and special bank policemen. Two officers George Mortman and Albert Anderson attempted to seize the man. As they grasped his arms he kicked a satchel which he had placed on the floor. Immediately there was a terrific blast. The man who demanded the money was said to have had his head blown off. The two policemen were reported critically hurt.

Many windows in the 16-story building were shattered engulfing pedestrians in a shower of glass.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 24.—(AP)—An explosion of undetermined origin in the Farmers National bank building in the heart of the downtown district this afternoon shattered many windows and resulted in injuries to more than ten pedestrians.

The pedestrians crossing one of the city's busiest intersections, Fifth avenue and Wood street, were caught in a shower of flying glass. A number were removed to hospitals in patrol cars and taxicabs.

The explosion rocked the downtown district. The interior of the bank, one of Pittsburgh's leading financial institutions, was wrecked. The second floor was wrecked likewise. The structure is 16 stories high.

Within a minute the scene was one of utter confusion.

GRAND DETOUR LATE MONDAYHIGHWAY MURDER
IN MISSOURI NEW
CLEW IN SLAYINGChicago Assassination Sunday
Thought Result
Old Crime

Chicago, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Back to a roadside killing four years ago in Missouri police turned today for solution of the assassination Sunday night of Michael Delbano shot to death as he sat in an automobile talking with his wife.

It was the story of the widow that led to discarding of the theory that a bootlegging feud was responsible and centered attention on the crime for which two of the slain man's brothers are now serving sentences in Missouri.

The suggestions seen by authorities were that Delbano may have been killed to avenge the death for which he was sought, or that the shooting may have been motivated by his own kinsmen. The widow said he had declined to aid the two brothers.

Carl and Frank Delbano were sentenced last year to 15 and 10 years respectively for second degree murder in connection with the shooting of 18 year old Henry Nowlin of Oklahoma City near Moundville, Mo., after an argument ensuing from an automobile accident. Sam and Michael also were sought but never captured and detectives said Delbano was known to have changed his name to Elando and come here after a brief stay in Kansas City.

CHARGE YOUTH
CAUSED DEATH OF YOUNG GIRL

Cleveland, O., Aug. 24.—(AP)—A sophomore student in the medical school at Western Reserve university was being questioned today about the death of Dorothy Kirk, 21, who police believe, was a victim of drugs given her for experimental purposes.

The detectives found half a bushel basket full of drugs under the student's bed.

"From what we have already learned, I would say he has the same slant on life as Loeb and Leopold," one of the detectives declared.

City Chemist Knapp was making an analysis of the pills found in Miss Kirk's room and compared them with similar pills in the suspect's collection.

"I met Miss Kirk," the young man said, "at church services."

"When did you first begin giving her drugs," police asked.

"A month or six weeks ago," the suspect answered. "Dorothy told me she wasn't feeling well and I prepared some prescriptions."

"What was the matter with her?" "I don't know," the suspect replied. "What I gave her was to soothe her. I thought she was nervous."

Police said the youth could not or would not tell was drugs were in the pills.

Funeral of Dr. Eliot

A brief service in the Union church at noon was arranged before the body was taken to Cambridge, Mass. There final rites will be spoken tomorrow.

Frank Catalina, Joe Keenan Placed in Ogle Co. Jail

Dixonites, or rather recent citizens, were conspicuous in Ogle county court circles this morning, two having been taken in custody by officers from Sheriff S. N. Dodson's office over night. Frank Catalina, who a few days ago moved his family to his Ogle county home at Grand Detour, is again behind the bars, but this time it is in the Ogle county jail, where he is charged with possessing and selling intoxicating liquor. All of the penalties inflicted upon Frank while a resident of Lee county, according to Ogle county officers, have been of no avail.

Sheriff Dodson, headed a ridding party who called at the Catalina home on route 2 in Grand Detour late yesterday afternoon. A quantity of home brew and considerable "mule" liquor is reported to have been taken in the raid. Frank was visiting in Dixon when the officers arrived, but they formed a reception committee when he returned, and he was escorted to the county jail at Oregon.

Joseph "Skut" Keenan was arrested here last evening and taken to Oregon, where he is held on a charge of threatening to shoot to kill. Galen Moser of Grand Detour is the com-plainant. Keenan, Catalina and Moser were said to be members of a fishing party several days ago when Keenan became infuriated and threatened to shoot Moser.

"TRUDE" ALONE
IN CONQUERING
CHANNEL SWIM

Cape Gris Nez, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Gertrude Ederle, apparently is to be the only swimmer who will have to her credit the feat of swimming the English channel this year. The season is late.

Five aspirants—two of them American girls—tackled the cold, rough and elusive waterway yesterday and last night. All failed.

Clarabelle Barrett of New Rochelle, N. Y., and Lillian Cannon of Baltimore were ambitious not alone to cross the channel, but to cut down "Trude's" record time of 14 hours 31 minutes. Miss Barrett suffered from sea-sickness while Miss Cannon had an attack of cramps.

Otto Kemmerich, a German, came into collision with a dog fiener, another German named Vierkoeten, and a Frenchman named Ledrant also tried to swim. All the swimmers started from Gris Nez for the English shore, except Miss Barrett, who struck out from Dover to cross to the French side.

The paper was accepted as genuine because the merchants knew Ward to be one of the superintendents of construction with a road gang near here and the man presenting the check wore overalls, a congo work shirt and heavy shoes.

That the signature of Ward was a forgery was not learned until the day after the checks had been accepted. Ward explained the company kept its cash in a Stockton, bank and did not pay its employees by check.

Colored Giants to Play Here Sunday

The Freeport Colored Giants, a fast aggregation of baseball stars, will appear before the Dixon fans Sunday afternoon in a game to be played with the Dixon Browns at the Brown Field. The management of the Browns is planning to accommodate the largest crowd of the season at this game.

The lineup of the Dixon team will be announced tomorrow.

Mallory Back on Top in U. S. Tennis Contests

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Molla B. Mallory is back upon the highest pinnacle of American women's tennis for the seventh time. The 33 year old New York woman, native of Norway yesterday conquered Miss Elizabeth Ryan of Santa Monica, Calif., in a three set battle. The winner came from behind. Miss Ryan at one time needed just one point for the title. The score was 4-6, 6-4, 9-7.

THOMAS BURKHART, DIXONITE FOR SIXTY YEARS, IS FOUND DEAD IN BED THIS MORNING

Thomas Burkhardt, a resident of Dixon township for almost sixty years, was found dead in bed at his home west of the Borden condorsary at an early hour this morning. The body was removed to the Staples-Moyer mortuary where Coroner Frank M. Banker conducted an inquest, the jury returning a verdict of death due to apoplexy.

Mr. Burkhardt suffered a stroke about eight years ago, from which he almost fully recovered. About five years ago, he suffered a second stroke and for several months was practically helpless. He is believed to have suffered another stroke about 130 this morning, which took his life. He was born in Forrester, March 2, 1862. The obituary and funeral notice will be published later.

DEKALB MAN
SHOOTS WIFE
AND HIMSELFJealousy and Financial Worries Cause Double
Tragedy Today

Arisling from a night of quarreling with his wife, one of many in recent months, according to neighbors, Geo. Kunkle, aged 55, a farmer living near Shabbona Grove, a short way across the DeKalb-Lee county line, arose at dawn this morning, shot his wife, Elma, aged 45, to death as she lay in her bed, and then turned the gun on himself and put a fatal bullet into his own head.

Two little daughters, Viola, aged 11, and Helen, aged 9, awakened by their parents' quarreling, helplessly looked on as their father, in a fit of jealousy and despondency, made them orphans in two brief minutes.

Then, frightened, the little girls ran to a neighbor, who summoned a physician and relatives, but the parents were both dead when the summoned people arrived.

It is reported around Shabbona Grove that financial troubles have been causing Kunkle considerable worry recently, and he is also said to have been jealous over the alleged attentions of another man toward his wife. The two worries are thought to have led to this morning's double tragedy.

Abandoned Auto
Sterling Woman's

Mrs. Will Boucher of Sterling came to Dixon this morning and claimed the Oldsmobile touring car which was being held by the police, following a collision with one of the Coss dairy wagons about 4 o'clock Sunday morning on Galeana avenue and Fifth street, and when she made her appearance Justice Martin J. Gannon was called to the police station and assessed a fine of $10 and costs against the woman on a charge of driving an automobile with fictitious license plates.

The owner of the dairy wagon was also notified and placed his claim of damages, which amounted to $25, which was also paid, before the car was turned over to its owner. Mrs. Boucher is reported to have stated that she was driving the car at the time and following the collision she went to the home of a friend and returned to Sterling, abandoning the car on the scene.

Forger is Sought
By Mt. Carrollites

Mt. Carroll—Carroll county authorities are endeavoring to learn the whereabouts of an affable young man who passed two forged checks on two local firms, Sipes & Company and Kraft-Kessler Company, from each of whom he bought a small quantity of merchandise, tendering a check on the First State bank of Mt. Carroll, made out in favor of "John Rader" and signed "C. Ward."

The paper was accepted as genuine because the merchants knew Ward to be one of the superintendents of construction with a road gang near here and the man presenting the check wore overalls, a congo work shirt and heavy shoes.

That the signature of Ward was a forgery was not learned until the day after the checks had been accepted. Ward explained the company kept its cash in a Stockton, bank and did not pay its employees by check.

Uncle Joe Compelled to Take More Leisure

Danville, Ill., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Uncle Joe Cannon is not sick, but merely tired out.

This statement, given out by his personal physician, Dr. Charles E. Wilkinson, was in denial of published reports that the summoning home of Cannon's daughter, Miss Helen Cannon, from Europe was necessitated by his serious illness.

The aged ex-speaker of the national house is taking more rests, however, and has ceased his custom of a daily automobile ride through the city.

NEW DEADLOCK
IN CHURCH WAR
NOT HOPELESSChurch Officials Hope the Door Has Not Been
Finally Closed

Mexico City, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Although a deadlock again has been reached in the controversy between the Roman Catholic church and the Mexican government over the new religious regulations, hope still exists that all doors to a settlement have not been closed.

This hope is based on a statement issued by the Catholic episcopate as a supplement to its declaration yesterday that the situation has reverted to the same status as before the conference Saturday night between President Calles, Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores and Bishop Diaz of Tabasco.

Praise Frankness.
This supplemental statement referred to the "cordiality and frankness" prevailing at Saturday night's conference and declared that the interview gave "hope to all the world that when future serious difficulties are presented they can be resolved with much benefit to the nation through easy understanding between the government and the prelates."

In its earlier statement yesterday, the episcopate reiterated its stand for abrogation of the religious laws which it regards as destructive to religious liberty. Bishop Diaz said that this statement, which also stated that religious services would not be resumed for the present, was considerably influenced by one attributed to President Calles to the effect that if priests returned to their churches they must do so subject to the law.

Registration of priests under the law was merely for administrative purposes.

New Interpretation.
The interpretation placed on the developments of the last few days by those in close touch with both Catholic and government leaders, is that statements issued by the episcopate at Saturday night's conference had a "used force in some Catholic circles that the church might be placed in an attitude of yielding or resuming services without adequate or sufficiently definite promises by the government."

Nevertheless the supplemental statement referring to the possibility of a future settlement is construed as intended to leave the way open for conferences with President Calles if developments should justify them.

Meanwhile the episcopate is considering plans for a campaign to bring about amendment of the religious laws of the constitution by congressional action.

License Required for
New Style of Trailer

Springfield, Ill. Aug. 24.—(AP)—A motor license for both trucks and trailers, if the trailers are four wheeled vehicles which may be used independently must be obtained, an opinion of the Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom said today.

The opinion resulted from a question received by the secretary of state asking whether the new tractor and trailer equipment lately invented should call for the double tax.

"The equipment," said Attorney General, "consisting of a motor truck which may be used independently of the trailer, and the trailer, must have an appropriate license for each unit."

Photographs disclosed the fact that the machines consisted of a self-propelled vehicle on four wheels and another carriage of four wheels, the two in front being carried off the ground while the equipment is in motion on the highway and used only when the trailer is disconnected from the tractor.

FELLOWSHIP—

Oh! For the hand of fellowship,
Hands hardened and rough with toil,
Workers in factory and plough shop
And toilers in earth's rich soil.

A bond of friendship between them
That nothing in life can break
A seal of love and brotherhood—
A blessing we all may partake.

The rich may join this fellowship
Chasing toll hardened hand—
Finding therein a happiness
Unequaled in all the land.

Joining their forces together
Alike, the rich, and the poor
Might make of earth a heaven
Beside a peaceful shore.

Working for God and His Kingdom,
Cheering the sad and distressed,
Winning lost souls for the Master
Knowing their work will be blest.

Let us waste not our lives seeking Pleasure,
Or pastimes that lead us astray,
But instead, let us o'er run the measure
With things that shall never decay.

Come let us join His vast army
Traveling the straight narrow road
Let the rich and the poor together
Help lighten each other's load.

Thus let us journey forever
Firmly clasping each other's hand
To the heights where in union we'll weather
The storms, that assail our brave band.
Mrs. J. E. Reagan.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.

BREAKFAST—Baked pears, broiled salt fish, creamed potatoes, cornmeal and wheat muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Open cream cheese sandwich, jelly roll cake, maple fluff.

DINNER—Roast leg of lamb, mint jelly, potato marbles in parsley butter, creamed carrots, cucumber salad, whole wheat bread, peach mousse, plain cake milk, coffee.

This is a delicious company dinner for summer and with the exception of the salad the youngest member of the family who comes to the table may partake of all the dishes.

This is worth considering when for children additional work and confusion is the result.

Maple fluff is a delicious, nourishing beverage for a particularly hot and busy noon.

Maple Fluff (Individual)
One egg, two-thirds cup milk, three tablespoons maple syrup.

Beat yolk of egg well with 2 tablespoons syrup, gradually beating in milk. Beat white of egg until stiff, beating in 1 tablespoon syrup. Combine mixtures, beating well. Pour into a tall glass and serve at once.

This amount of syrup makes a very sweet drink, so use less as preferred. The milk should be well chilled to preclude the use of ice.

Brides of Near Future Honored

Mrs. Milo Vorhis, Miss Alma Moeller and Miss Mamie Pankhurst were hostesses last evening at a party which honored two brides of the near future, Miss Annabelle Hartzell and Miss Henrietta Flosschuetz. A dinner was served at Oak Tree Inn for eleven guests and a happy evening followed, which was spent at the home of Mrs. Vorhis.

The decorations for the delightful dinner were in garden flowers, with asters and gladioli predominating. After the dinner the party proceeded to the home of Mrs. Vorhis of E. Fourth street, where music and games made the happy hours pass all too swiftly.

Miss Hartzell is to wed Theodore Pitzer of Nachusa township in the near future and Miss Flosschuetz is soon to wed Otto Blum of Ashton.

A WOMAN'S ~DAY~ ABROAD

BY ALLENE SUMNER.

Rome, Italy.—"And believe me, when I come the next time, I'll have no baggage—just the duds on my back!"

If there is any one classic remark heard from the ruby lips of "we foreigners" who have trekked across the salty waves for to see the Apaches of Montmartre and the donkeys of Italy all dressed up with red ribbons on their hats, it is the above.

All by way of launching into the lesson, part of which, at least, shall concern itself with what to wear and what to bring when you come to Europe.

This is not so highbrow perhaps as a sage dissertation on the rubble heap known as the Roman forum, or as dramatic as an exposition of the Cemetery of the Capucians in this town of Rome, which cemetery is mural and frescoed with tricky designs wrought from the rotted bones of some 4000 monks buried there, with an occasional highlight of art in the way of a skeleton dressed in a monk's cowl, huddled in a wall niche.

But whether highbrow or dramatic, you will bless me a thousand-fold when you trek into parts unknown with one little two-by-four wicker suitcase and a haughty smile for the "porteurs" and "faccinos" who would grab one's inheritance along with one's luggage.

Friends who have been to Europe mean well, but each has his or her own little pet scheme on the howl and the wherewithal.

"Don't take a trunk! It will drive you mad!" said one or two.

"Don't try to travel with a suitcase—you'll hate being away so long without all the comforts of home!" said another faction.

We heeded the outcry of the first faction, thanks whatever Gods there be! Do thou likewise! A trunk when traveling in Europe is about as necessary as maldenhair fern growing from horses' ears.

Besides, the pence, Imogene! One pays full fare for a trunk in all countries of Europe.

Having steered you into the straight and narrow which permits of no trunk when traveling in Europe, let me attempt to persuade you to let the family suitcase tarry at home, and take with you into parts afar merely an overnight bag stocked with only such essentials as you will need on the boat, and such things as can not be resupplied is most any store anywhere—and there are fully as many kinds of stores in Europe as at home mark ye!

It works like this: Porters are allowed on only very few trains in Europe. We have found but one station in almost constant travel over three nations where porters were permitted to board trains at stations and take luggage off.

The accepted method is for one-half of one's party to betake itself to the platform while the other faction huris baggage through the compartment window at 'em or on 'em, smash what will.

Not so much fun when one has attempted to loot the shops of potteries and pictures and perfumes, all that the old family pocket book will stand, heavy though the result may be!

Then one pays the porter by bag, something like 10 cents a bag which does not seem so much, but after the first hundred moves might have bought a gorgeous Roman scarf or Florentine bag.

One pays per bag, also, in the taxis, and one finds oneself growing more and more reluctant to move on to fairer climes with the baggage problem eternally haunting one!

The very smartest American I have found in Europe in a Boston professor who is traveling utterly sans baggage save for a brief case wherein are tucked a toothbrush and one specimen of the family B. V. D. Professorial.

He buys soap, enough drops, shoe strings, handkerchiefs, shaving cream as he needs it, or them. He estimates that he is in no way extravagant by throwing his various purchases away when contrasted with the cost of baggage if he had it.

He is the merriest, happiest, traveling soul, pushing on from one unknown place to another, walking the highways and byways, as free to roam when and where he will as the ubiquitous Italian flea.

One dark and cool traveling costume is about all one needs, anyway. Travelers are accepted at par value and nothing more is expected of them. I have not seen one dress hat among the traveling herd yet!

Birthday Party Enjoyed Saturday

Neva June Atkinson was ten years old June 10th but owing to illness in the family her birthday party was postponed until last Saturday when her grandma, Mrs. G. S. Ransom, entertained for Neva June, fourteen little folks at her beautiful country home at Merridale, in Nelson. A chicken dinner with all the tempting accessories was the first thing on the program and the youngsters certainly enjoyed it. Afterward the chief attractions were driving a horse hitched to a breaking cart, and horse back-riding, which with the puppies and lambs, etc., made the time pass all too quickly, until 5 o'clock when ice cream and cake were served on the lawn. Then Neva and her aunt, Miss Mary Ransom, took the little guests back to town. Neva was the recipient of many pretty gifts for the occasion with the best wishes of her little friends.

TO PROMOTE REFORESTATION.

The Modern Woodmen of America as an organization has been invited to become identified with the American Green Cross society, to promote reforestation. It point of contact is to be through A. A. Talbot, head consul, who has been asked to take a place on the board of governors. The executive council of the Woodmen has directed Mr. Talbot to follow his own inclinations after investigation.

It was natural that the American Green Cross should turn to a society that functions in terms of woodcraft in an appeal to reforest the territory laid waste by the woodsman's ax and to conserve the timber lands of the United States. Especially will it be an asset to have enlisted the largest fraternal insurance society in the world.

Objects of the new organization are creditable. Our forests have been treated as mines instead of crops. We take out the trees as we take out the coal and put nothing back. Older countries have learned that when a crop of trees is taken off preparation should be made for another crop, as the wheat farmer and the corn farmer do. Of course the growing season of the reforester is a generation of man instead of a summer.

In this land of plenty, which we so frequently describe as having "inexhaustible resources," we have failed to think of those who come after us. We know there is enough coal and iron and lumber to last through this generation and all we worry about is whether or not the gasoline will hold out; and of that we only talk. We do not do anything about it. What the American Green Cross can do we do not know. Only by organization do we do anything in this country. It is well enough that such an organization exists. It is not enough that we stay the ax and avoid the forest fire. We must begin replacing our forests, our dense woodlands, our crops of trees.

We saw no danger to natural resources in removing our trees in straightening our creeks, so that we might have more land at $150 or $200 an acre. It did not appear that any individual or small group of individuals could interfere seriously with nature's great plans. Yet we find that too many individuals and too many groups acting in the same manner have had a serious effect upon conservation of moisture.

Levels of the Great Lakes have been lowered appreciably. Small lakes have disappeared. Even Minnehaha must have an artificial laugh.

Some organization must take an inventory of our resources. Probably the government has the inventories. Some organization must take the responsibility of retarding the interference with natural resources, which have seemed inexhaustible, before all of our forests are gone and our lakes are dry and our headwaters of rivers are deserts.

LOOKING THE PART.

In one of his syndicate articles Dr. Frank Crane says he has difficulty finding men who look as he expected them to. An eminent scientist upon whom he called might have been a barber at Oshkosh or Kokomo. He describes other persons of note similarly. He concludes: "In fact I do not remember seeing anyone who 'looked the part.'"

"Looking the part" is not what it used to be, either in looks or dress. Some of us remember when men were inclined to dress in a manner distinctive of profession, but the automobile put an end to that. Long coats, top hats, or even stiff hats have been sent to the attic by the automobile. They simply do not go together.

Even in the days of distinctive dress it was not possible entirely to avoid confusion. The conclusions of Dr. Crane call to mind a college professor who also was a minister of the gospel, who had a complaint. He said:

"If I am called doctor, no one knows whether I am a doctor of divinity or a veterinarian. If I am called professor, I may be either a professor of mathematics or a piano player. If I wear a white tie I may be a minister or a bartender. If I wear a Prince Albert coat I am either a pastor or a medicine man."

A sheriff used to wear a hat with a broad brim and when he had his picture taken it was with his hat on.

Nobody "looks the part" now except a college student, and it requires all of his attention to change styles frequently enough to avoid counterfeits.

"Before long he'll be buying good First Mortgage Bonds"

—said a prominent banker recently

"Yes, I'm letting the young fellow take a flyer in stocks," said one of Chicago's bankers recently, in speaking of his twenty-two year old son. "He bought some stock on margin last November and has been putting up margins ever since. He is getting pretty tired of it. I'm letting him go ahead, because getting his fingers burnt will teach him more than any advice of mine. Before long he'll be buying good first mortgage bonds."

Many of the most conservative investors have taken a "flyer" in the stock market some time in the past. Some of them have made money, but the majority have bought experience.

Then they turn to good safe bonds. A great many of them own "Anchors of Safety"—Forman First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds, because they know these time-tested bonds represent unqualified safety, and in addition pay an attractive interest return, now 6½ and 6%.

SOFT LENIENCY FOR HARDENED CROOKS NO MORE

New Chief of Parole Board to Protect People of Illinois

BY LESTER B. COLBY
Illinois Chamber of Commerce

"When the police catch a professional crook who has robbed a hundred homes he may be indicted on a dozen or fifteen counts. Then the state's attorney, to gain sure conviction, may try him on one charge of larceny, reducing the charge by agreement, if he will plead guilty."

"The prisoner, a professional crook, is told something like this: 'Go down on a larceny charge, and you'll get one to seven years, probably, and then when the first year is up, parole out.' And it has been parole out. 'Things are going to change down there. As it has been, one year to life has meant one year. From now on, one year to life is going to mean life—less deductions from the maximum, instead of plus on the minimum, as heretofore.'"

Hinton G. Clabaugh, new chief of the parole board which is the sole source of paroles from the prisons in Illinois told me the above. He meant it. He meant it 100 per cent. He went on:

"I have learned more in sixteen days, investigations of records in Joliet than I learned in sixteen years in the service of the federal government. There are cases in the records that make you burn with indignation; records of political crooks, crooked lawyers and even crooked judges working to turn professional crooks loose upon the public."

"There are also cases that would make you cry; stories that are heart-breaking, all in the records. Think of murderers, rapists, cut-throats and professional thieves being turned loose regardless while another man serves years because he stole a tin of sardines and a handful of crackers from a shack when he was hungry. Think of bank robbers and safe crackers being turned out in a few months to ply their trade while a poor negro serves several years for stealing chickens."

In the opening paragraph of this story it is revealed how professional crooks, with punishment due that might keep them in prison ten lifetimes, get out of jail in a few months under the "agreement racket." Mr. Clabaugh knows something more of that. He said:

"A clever lawyer will see to it that nothing goes into the record but the simple matter of a single conviction on a single charge of larceny. When the year is up he comes before the parole board and wrings his hand and begs:

"If the parole board goes back of the records of the case and looks up the police records; if the parole board shows the lawyer that his client is a professional crook who has served a half dozen sentences, and has committed five hundred crimes, the lawyers will cry:

"But you can't judge him on anything but this trial record. You can't go outside of the trial. Here's the record of the trial. You can't take into account anything else."

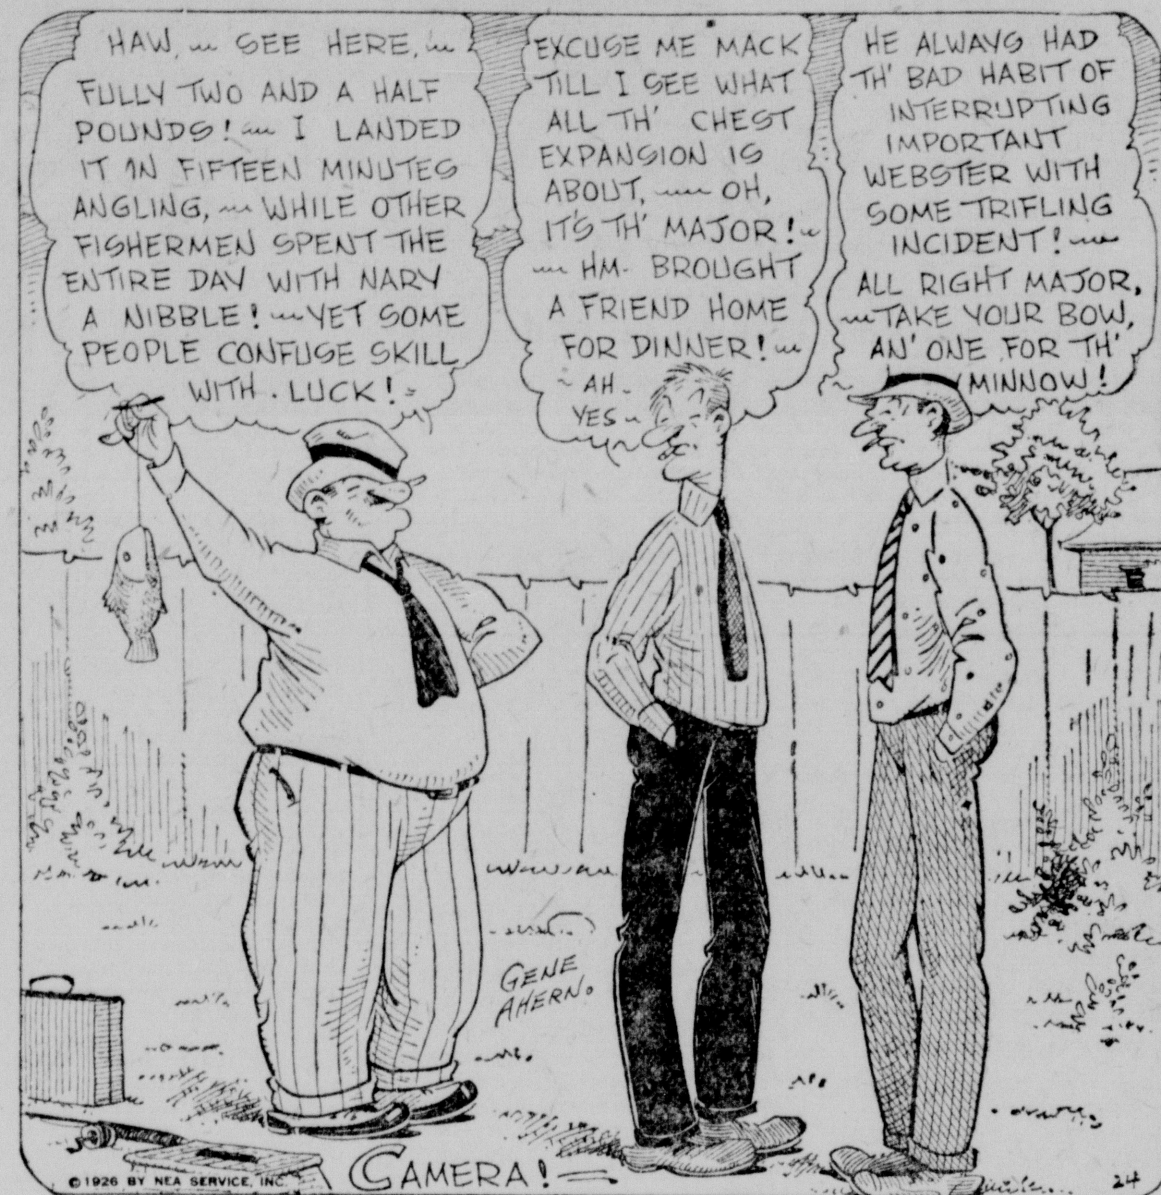

"I'm telling these lawyers that I can take into account anything else—anything. And I am going to tell them that if common sense and justice don't rule in the court room—justice for the public as well as the prisoner—that it is going to rule before the parole board."

"I'm going to tell them that when a crook is sentenced to from one to ten years, that means ten years, not one year, and that the only way a prisoner can get out under ten years is to show good reason why. I don't mean that I'm going to be hard-hearted. I hope to be human."

"There's an old man down in the prison that I'm likely to turn out next week. I'm taking stock. It's sort of an inventory. I'm going through the shelves to see what goods I've got on hand. From the records and from the investigation made I'm pretty sure this old man isn't a criminal. I'm pretty sure he was never guilty of much of anything."

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

BY AHERNS

"I'm pretty well convinced that certain persons, with whom he was in business, prosecuted him and in doing so misused and abused a public office for private gain. That old man has served a year and a half. Apparently he has no friends to help him. He's going to be the most surprised man in Joliet when I turn him out. I don't know him, haven't talked with him, haven't even seen him yet. What I know has shown up in the records and the investigation."

"I am first looking into the case of those poor unfortunates who are without friends, money or influence, to see whether they have been fairly treated and which ones, if any, may safely be released or paroled."

I asked Mr. Clabaugh if efforts had been made, this early, to influence him in any way to bring about the release of prisoners. He replied:

"Yes, plenty of them. Already one judge has come to the front to get favors for certain criminals. Already politicians have sought to bring pressure for the release of friends. Already the governor has forwarded me a batch of letters sent to him on behalf of certain prisoners. He forwarded them without comment or suggestion."

"Yes, already efforts have been made to annoy me, to scare me, to harass me. Already persons have tried to make my job a burden."

Then Mr. Clabaugh leaned forward with a twinkle in his eye and said:

"Rally, I think this is going to be the easiest task I ever tackled. I think setting out justice is going to be simple enough. I've got the thing pretty well organized already and know, in my own mind, just how I'm going to work."

"For one thing, no word of mouth appeal is going to go. Everything that is said on behalf of a prisoner must be put down in writing. It's got to be in the record or it isn't there at all. The public is going to have access to all information."

"Everything that is done will be wide open. There'll be no closed doors and no pull. Intrigue doesn't flourish in sunlight. I'm going to see that the sun is let in. When I took this job, Gov. Small promised me that no friend and no politician would be permitted to interfere with me. He promised me that if any state official interfered he would discharge him if it were in his power to do so."

"So far, he has kept his word with me absolutely. I think he will continue to do so."

(Another story telling of the efforts to reform the parole system in Illinois will be printed soon.)

Grand Jury Will Probe Murder Case

Vandalia, Ill., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The case of the murder of Peter Rosenberger, aged reclusive farmer, of near Assumption, Ill., who disappeared June 29, and whose body was found recently in a river near Shobonier, is expected to be among the first cases considered by the Fayette county grand jury which met today.

No particular charge was given the jury regarding the case but Sheriff William Greene declared that while the officials had no definite information that could be made public at present, he believed the authorities had solved the Rosenberger mystery and would have a complete case ready to submit to the grand jury. The jury met Monday morning and adjourned until afternoon.

Frank Sparr, who exhibited a bill of sale of the Rosenberger stock and crops after the Rosenberger disappearance, is being held without bail. At the Rosenberger farm a suitcase, said by Sparr to have been taken by Rosenberger on a trip east, was found in an old shed Sunday.

ROCHELLE NEWS

ROCHELLE — The Midwest Canning Corporation with main plant and offices here, and a big productive branch cannery at DeKalb, started their corn pack Saturday and will be busily engaged in canning sweet corn from thousands of acres from now until frost.

In the pea season over 450,000 cases of peas (2 dozen to the case) were hulled, hauled, cooked, canned and labeled at the two plants. To turn off this enormous total of finished products a total acreage of 6,000 acres was planted and cultivated by over 200 men as field hands and laborers, using 115 tractors and 350 mules. In addition 250 employees were employed for several weeks to complete the canning season's labor, and a busy office force in the large office building handled the detail and routine work under the direction of General Manager Ralph Brown and his aides.

This year the Rochelle plant packed the major portion of their run of peas into the cans of the nationally famous de luxe brand the Del Monte. The private brand of the company is "Capulin Kid".

The Rochelle Knitting Mills, manufacturing the better grade of shaker sweaters and caps exclusively, has steadily increased its output since the opening up for business the first part of April, 1925, and has proven to be one of the fastest growing factories in Rochelle. Just now the factory is in need of more help, one or two good men, but principally girls and women.

The output for the first three months of this year was 400 per cent greater than that of the first three months of operation last year.

Three new machines have been added to the equipment since opening for operation, two of which were installed in March of this year, and are automatic machines to make cuffs, pockets, and different styles of caps. This machinery has added to the efficiency of the factory as well as increasing the output.

The total capacity is 2,500 dozen garments per year, which compares well with other shaker knit factories in the United States which produce only high grade goods.

A payroll like that of the Rochelle Knitting Mills is a decided asset to both the business interests and the community life of Rochelle, in that there is not only a large weekly payroll that adds to the business of the city, but also the scale of wages is much higher than in the ordinary factory making possible a much higher standard of living for its employees.

In employing help every possible effort is made to secure Rochelle people and make it as much as possible a Rochelle enterprise.

Besides about 60 home workers and finishers, there is a very efficient factory force of Rochelle people consisting of:

Officers of the company: M. D. Hathaway, president; George N. Grieve, secretary and manager; Frank Carney, treasurer; Stasia Nugent, assistant secretary.

Superintendent: Fred Arenz.
Knitters: Erwin Kempe, Caesar Kemp, Albert Caron, Ralph Dame, John Payne, Robert Wheeler.
Shipping clerk: Earl Nugent.
Inspector: Mrs. Arenz.

Operators of finishing machine: Gladys Rutherford, Rose Jacobson.
Operators of winding machine: Edith Babb and Anna Drescher.

Contrary to the idea of most people that sweaters are manufactured as a whole in one operation, each part of the sweater is knitted separately and then put together.

The yarn is bought in skeins and transferred by machinery to cones, which fit on the knitting machines.

The body of the sweater is made on a large machine, with the pockets marked in the body during the process of knitting.

The sleeves, collar, lapel, pockets and cuffs of the sweater are each made separately.

After the knitting of the various parts of the sweater is completed they are sent to the homes of the finishers for assembling. About 60 women, all residents of Rochelle, are employed for this work.

The sweaters are then returned to go through the operation of putting in button holes and sewing on the buttons and lapels. They then go through careful inspection, after which they are steamed and pressed and packed in boxes.

Rochelle Township high school will open on Monday, August 30th, at 9:00 a. m. Students who expect to enroll and were not in attendance last year must call at the high school building to enroll for the fall semester. The principal's office will be open from 9:00 to 12:00 o'clock and from 1:00 to 4:00 p. m. Enrollment is important as classes will take up their work immediately.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Simpson and son of Dormont, Pa., are here to visit Rochelle relatives and friends. Miss Phoebe Brundage, who is attending summer school in Pittsburgh, will reach Rochelle Tuesday. Miss Brundage, who is a high school teacher and has been teaching in Oklahoma, is taking advanced work in English.

Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Neely and son have moved their household goods to Chicago, where they will make their home.

A beautiful and valuable addition to the bookshelves of the local Flag Township Public Library is the gift of Mrs. George W. Dicus, of St. Paul, a former Rochelle resident. The present is a deluxe addition of the "White House Gallery," being a complete volume of official portraits of all of the Presidents of the United States.

Miss Ella M. Eversole of the sales force of the Geo. D. Whitcomb Company is enjoying a two weeks vacation which she is spending at her home in Sterling.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Kirby and family of Chicago, were week end guests of Mrs. Kirby's sister, Miss Irene Coleman.

John Maxson, Rochelle's well-known and popular baker, has been appointed to the reception committee to serve at the 29th annual convention of the American Bakers' Association in Atlantic City September 20-24. The appointment was announced by J. J. Schuraker of Philadelphia, president of the association. Mr. Maxson states that he will attend.

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine and Will H. Hays, former Postmaster General, will be among the convention speakers. It is estimated that 9,000 members and their families will attend.

Mr. Maxson, from a very nominal start eight years ago, has graduated to an outstanding position in this section as a high grade baker.

EXPERTS' DOPE ON HUGMEN WAS PROVEN A JOKE

Yankees Surprise All by Runaway Race in American League

Chicago. (AP)—The collapse of the Washington Senators, as possible champions of the American League, is being accepted with much philosophical resignation, and lack of hand wringing regret, so much so, that the idea prevails generally that nobody cares.

The demise of the Senators, who are now rated merely as a pretty good ball club, not going any place, but just on tour, has been completely overshadowed by the rambunctious Yankees, which club is staging an old-fashioned runaway. The Yanks have been conducting themselves like an aggregation that had some place to go and wanted to get there quick.

The case of the Washington and New York teams demonstrates the uncertainty of the national pastime. Last spring the swarm of experts went motor busing from one camp to another to record the activities of the Senators with dignity, and gave them an edge on the race this year, although some of them intimated that a few of the team members were not as good as they thought they were. On the other hand, the Yanks were held to be the boos of the training campaign, and were described as a bunch of mugs trying to play ball.

Hugmen 'Are 'In'

The Washington team melted like ice cream under a hot sun when the race got going, while the Yanks developed another "murderer's row" and now are leading the runner up in the so-called junior circuit by about the same distance that the band parades ahead of the steam callopie in a circus parade. The Hugmen are "in" to all good purposes and intent, although none of the New York officials are claiming anything yet. Only a disastrous railroad wreck and the bubonic plague can stop them at this stage of the game.

The Senators lost considerably in popularity this year, for some reason or other. Even the great Walter Johnson, who has a personal following second to none, could not stem the tide. This might be ascribed to the fact that the public loves a winner, and only shrugs its shoulders when a loser comes around. At any rate, Stanley Harris and his boys will watch some other team play the American League end of the world's series this year, and it looks like the Bambino and his gang will oppose the National League entry.

ROSENBERG HAS HARD FIGHT ON HANDS WITH PETE

Fans Promised Real Fighting in Chicago Friday

Chicago—Charley Phil Rosenberg, world's bantamweight champion, has a tough job on his hands when he stacks up against Pete Sarmiento, Filipino sensation in a ten round decision bout at the top of the boxing card at the White Sox Ball park, Friday night of this week. Rosenberg must win the decision to draw well against Bud Taylor, Sarmiento has been on the trail of the bantam boss for a long time but Rosenberg always refused to meet him in a decision bout. However the fight with Joey Sanger gave the champ confidence in himself and he is going in there against the little bronze battler on Friday night and try to stop him.

It is the first time in local history that a champion of the world defended his laurels in a show at popular prices. The admission Friday night is one, two and three dollars, with ring-side seats at five dollars.

Three great ten round fights support the main event. Tommy White, the southern sensation, meets Erwin Bigge, hard hitting Nebraskan, in one of the tens. Bigge is the hardest hitter in the west. He beat Ace Hudkins twice and the other night knocked out Joe Tiplitz in one round. He has modified murder in his left hand and likes to shoot punches from the first bell. White, the boy who trimmed Pinky Mitchell recently at Juarez, Mexico, is making his first start here. He is a stable mate of the hard hitting Clyde Hull and is directed by that great little bantam of a few years ago, Dick Griffin.

pearance here when he is booked to tackle the sensational Floyd Hybert of Cleveland in the third ten rounder.

Hybert knocked out Johnny Mendelsohn last week and beat Jimmy Finley recently. He is a real fighter who is strong and a good hitter. Hull showed in his first start that he packs a knockout wallop, especially in his long left hand. He stopped Leo Wax, Australian welter champion with ease and Hybert will have to be on the job every minute if he expects to finish the fight in a horizontal position.

The fourth ten rounder should furnish plenty of thrills for any of the fans. "Boogie" Saab, the Berlin-bach of Dixie, the boy who packed the arenas of the South last winter, meets Teddy Gartin, remembered for his two sensational bouts with Shuffie Callahan last season. Both boys are knockout artists. Imagine two Callahans, fighting each other and you have an idea of what will take place when Saab and Gartin start slinging punches.

The ring will be erected over home plate at the White Sox park and the entire field illuminated with huge flood lights. A battery of powerful projection lamps will light the ring itself and the whole park will be light as day.

The first bout goes on promptly at 8:15 p. m. Tickets can be secured by sending money order or certified check to Mullen's Gymnasium ticket office, 180 West Randolph Street, Chicago.

CAREY HELPED SHOVE PIRATES OUT OF FIRST

St. Louis Cards Hold Lead in National League Today

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Louis perched on the top of the National league ladder today.

After struggling two weeks to oust the Pirates, Hornsby's men sat back and watched Brooklyn turn the trick for them.

The Pirates' old field boss, Max Carey, contributed to their downfall. Playing as an anti-Pirate for the first time in 17 years, he enabled Brooklyn to take the first game of a double header 7 to 3. He made two hits, walked once and scored two runs. He failed to appear in the second game.

Although the Pirates won the second game 10 to 2 the damage had been done.

The Cincinnati Reds added another thorn to the New York Giant's crown. With the McGraw aggregation enjoying a 6 to 3 lead in the ninth, the Reds came to life and tied the game, and won in the tenth.

The Yankees stretched their lead to ten games in the American league, moving out Cleveland 3 to 2.

Marberry's relief act failed for Washington against St. Louis when he uncorked a wild throw in the eighth that paved the way for four enemy runs. A four deadlock turned into an 8 to 4 St. Louis victory.

The Athletics took their second straight from Chicago, 4 to 1.

A Tiger assault snowed under Boston Red Sox 9 to 1.

The 1,000 marines encamped at the Sesqui-Centennial grounds gave Dempsey a cheer during his tour yesterday and then burst into cries of "We want Tunney". Tunney is a former marine.

DON JUAN

Novel by INEZ
SABASTIAN

Copyright, 1926, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"Don Juan," screen play by Basil Marchand, starring John Barrymore, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Don Juan's disillusioned father had warned him: "Destroy women or they will destroy you; take their love scornfully—and forget!" This advice has made Juan the greatest lover of all time. But his cynicism is suddenly checked by the disarming innocence of Madonna-like Adriana Varanese. The lovers in-cure the fearful enmity of infamous Lucretia Borgia, who loves Juan, and Donati, her kinsman, who covets Adriana. To save her father's life Adriana agrees to marry Do-nati, but when Duke Varanese is dragged to the Vatican to sign the agreement Donati breaks into Adriana's room.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued
There, Donati stood with his feet wide apart, his hands on his hips, watching her go, thinking of how easily he would reach her and catch her up in his arms, holding her close, pressing his lips to the white, smooth curve of her throat.
There were all the still night hours in which to conquer her; he need not hasten. And it was amusing to see her trying to face him courageously, with terror in her wide dark eyes.
Adriana's lips moved. She was murmuring a prayer. Surely the Virgin would protect her, would somehow save her from this fate that was far worse than death.
Her terror made her weak; she could hardly stand. All her strength went into that whispered prayer, and Donati, realizing what she was doing, smiled more broadly than ever.
In the hall below there was suspense almost as great. For Juan was there questioning the servants.
Not daring to tell him the truth, they swore that Adriana was not in the house; fear of Donati had torn their loyalty to shreds. Knowing that they were lying, Juan thought at first of fighting his way through their ranks and up the stairs; then another plan came to him, and he strode from the house.

Juan did not even try to defend himself.

In the courtyard he stood for a moment, looking about him. Do-nati's horse was tethered to one of the great metal rings fastened into the wall. On its blanket was embroided Donati's initials. Juan traced them with his finger, even as he laid his plans. He turned to study the side of the house.
And through one of the long windows he saw Adriana in Do-nati's arms.
For an instant he was almost mad with anger. Then reason forced him to stop and think. After all, what he once suspected might not be true. Once realization of her purity and loveliness swept over him. He fought down the inclination to rush away, and instead turned, crossed the courtyard, and began to climb the wall, instinctively finding footholds in the crevices between the great stones.

In the room above Donati stood staring down at Adriana, who lay back, almost fainting, in his arms.
He had pursued her across the room, had fought down her resistance, and now stood gloating as he held her limp body. The brocade had fallen from her shoulders; their rounded bareness was like that of some exquisite statue.

Juan's mad haste was needless, and the edges of the great stones crumbled beneath his feet. Bits of stone fell to the courtyard, and the sound brought Adriana back to consciousness, and made Donati turn toward the nearest window, his own face like that of a snarling animal whom someone wishes to rob of its prey.

He knew that it must be Juan;
in fact, he had been expecting him.
Adriana felt that her prayer had been answered; that it might be Juan who was coming she did not suspect. She would have cried out to this unknown rescuer, but Do-nati shook her threateningly.
"If you betray me by a look or sign I'll kill this intruder!" he told her, and the cruelty of his face left the heavy curtains of the furthest wall. He started toward them, but Adriana ran before him, and stood with outstretched arms, barring his way.

No physical wound could have made him suffer as did this action of hers. It was agony to see her standing there, begging him to go, swearing that there was no one else in the room but they two.

Even as she spoke the curtains moved slightly. He followed their movement to the door. A man's foot protruded slightly from beneath the curtains edge.
A hideous feeling of sickness swept over Juan. As if a curtain had been unrolled to show him another scene, he saw the tower room in his father's castle, when he himself had sat, a little child, watching while another man questioned another woman—while his father questioned his mother, who replied, as this girl was doing now, "There is no one here! I swear there is no one here!"

And suddenly, instead of his mother, he saw Adriana as she faced him, beautiful, innocent seeming, lying, as his mother had lied, to save her lover.
The cry that parted his lips was one of rage, and of hatred. With a sudden, swift movement he leaped forward and tore down the curtains, revealing Donati, standing with drawn sword.

Then, as if possessed by demons,
he began to laugh like a maniac, harsh, mad laughter that echoed in the lofty room.
"I believed in a woman's goodness, in her purity and loyalty!"
he cried, and his voice broke on the words "Laugh—for I am the fool of Rome!"
"Juan! Juan!" Adriana cried, and would have thrown her arms about him, but he thrust her back.
He was himself again suddenly,
the self he had been before he knew and loved her. His smile was bitter, sardonic, his voice cold.

He started out ten years ago. A man, in that time, ought to grow, but sloughing is his natural way—he still pulls down the same old pay.

When he is sixty years, or so, no doubt (and far too late) he'll know that earned a meager wage was work that laughed out loud at age.

"This was to him who has not flung his heart in work when he was young!
The best toll comes when in your prime. Men find it out—but not in time."

The man, right now, I have in mind, was always getting far behind in work and such. A lazy guy who never had the pep to try.
He'd drag along, from day to day, quite satisfied to draw his pay, and do as little as he could. Work hard
He knew not why he should.
He held his job; was never thrown out. They figured him a roustabout who slow, but sure, would slide on through with things no other man would do.

The VANITY CASE

by CAROLYN WELLS by G. P. PUTNAM SONS

BEGIN HERE TODAY
MRS. PRENTISS sees lights mysteriously appear and disappear in the Heath household next door one night, and the next day Harbor Gardens. Long Island, is agog with the murder of MYRA HEATH and the disappearance of her husband, PERRY.

House guests of the Heaths are LAWRENCE INMAN, heir to Myra's fortune, and BUNNY MOORE, vivacious, pretty, to whom suspicion points because of her peculiar actions.

Myra Heath never used rouge, never wore colors. She had a mania for collecting glass, and it was a rare old bottle from her collection that the murderer used to kill her. Candles were burning at her head and feet; nearly by a card marked, "The Work of Perry Heath." Strangest of all, she was heavily rouge!

The strange thing about Heath's disappearance is that all the windows and doors had been locked on the inside the night before and were found that way in the morning. Finger prints of Bunny Moore and Inman were found on the bottle.

At the Country Club the murder is discussed by SAM ANDERSON, Heath's rival for the club presidency; AL CUNNINGHAM, who is trying to solve the crime, and others. Some believe Heath the murderer. Anderson disagrees. TODHUNTER BUCK, nephew of Mrs. Prentiss and in love with Bunny, believes Heath also may have been murdered.

Bunny is amazed to get a phone call from Perry Heath telling her Inman is guilty. Bunny breaks down and faints under a grilling by DETECTIVE MOTT, who makes up his mind that she is guilty. Inman confides to Buck that he saw Bunny creeping upstairs after the murder.

Now go on with the story CHAPTER XXIX

DETECTIVE MOTT promised himself a profitable afternoon, as he approached the Heath house for the express purpose of grilling the servants.

He had his suspicions and his theories pretty well in shape, he told himself but he needed corroboration and also hoped to get side lights on certain aspects of the tragedy.

He passed the two men whom he saw talking on the veranda, and went on around to the rear entrance. Herrick admitted him, and with an air of importance, the detective unconsciously himself in the servants' sitting room, and commanded the butler to round up the whole staff and bring them at once.

There were, therefore, five harried and alarmed looking faces grouped in front of him, when he began his inquiry.

He had heard their stories before, but informed the scared servants that he believed they had not told all they knew, and unless they were prepared to come across with the whole truth, he hinted that there were vague but no less idle punishments awaiting them.

So frightening was his demeanor that his auditors, especially the women, became verbose and even glib.

"You never asked me nothing!" exclaimed Mrs. Pierce, the cook, as if resentful at being left out of the game. "And I know a lot!"

The mother was tired, crushed. Her clothes were shabby, worn. The daughter, who seemed not a day more than 20, was defiant, blase. Her clothes were flashy, Broadway-wise, modern.

The heartick mother told the story. They had come from a little town in Wisconsin. There the family had lived for many years—humble, working folk.

The mother had determined to give her daughter every advantage. She would have such an education as other girls had; her ambitions would not be suppressed.

She saved and stinted and sent Marian, such was the daughter's name, to the State University.

Marian was pretty. She could dance. Somebody told her she could get on the stage. Marian believed it. The status of the family purpose wasn't to be considered. She would get to Broadway.

And she did. The mother came with her. It took just about the last penny of her savings. They arrived as thousands arrive daily, unnoticed in the great depot throng.

Marian took up dancing in one of the many training schools. Also she catapaulted into one of the many groups of first youngsters. This was, indeed, the life!

Her mother lived in the humblest of quarters—a dingy cheap hall bedroom. The daughter moved in with a group of girls who were aspiring to the stage. She "just had to dress well" and she "just had to live in good quarters" if she intended "getting anywhere."

Mother and daughter would meet occasionally, but the meetings would be quiet and in out-of-the-way places, because the mother was shabby and must not be seen. The daughter, so the records indicate, learned quickly the ways of the young "gold-diggers" and managed to eat for a time. But one must dress well—one just "must!"

Where was the money coming from? Detectives of a big store caught a

"I'll bet you do," said Mott, encouragingly.

As a matter of fact, he hadn't much faith in the value of the cook's knowledge for he considered her too main was entirely outside the family's living rooms, and he doubted her opportunities for observation.

But he must leave no stone unturned, so he said, with a fine mixture of request and command:

"Tell what you know, Pierce, if it has any bearing on the case."

"Pearing on the case, is it? Well, sir, rather! I seen the murderer a sneakin' down the stairs, in the dead o'night, to do his murderin'!"

"You did?" Mott's attention was caught at last. "Who was it?"

"Who but Mr. Inman, to be sure. And him comin' along so soft and cat-footed, not makin' a sound—but I saw him plain as plain! that I did!"

"At what time was this?" Mott held his pencil poised over his notebook. "Be careful, now—if you don't know exactly, say so—don't draw on your imagination."

"Well, it would be not far from two o'clock, one way or another."

"And what were you doing out of bed at that time of night?"

"I was chasin' that Katie! Not that I'm responsible for the morals of any young girl, the mistress chosen to get in here, but I can't help takin' an interest, and Katie's a good girl, though over fond of trapeisin' out of evenin's."

"But we have account of Katie's time of entrance—"

"Yes, sir, and you know that Emma sneaked down to let her in, and all that. And you know that Emma went right back to bed, and that Katie lingered downstairs, as she most generally does, a catin' cold bits out of the ice box. Well, I had just enough cream for the breakfast, it wasn't over plenty, and I was scared that Katie'd make way with it, so I says to myself, I'll just slip down and see to that, so, down I come, in me dressin' gown, and sure enough, that Katie was just about reachin' for the cream pitcher!"

Well, I saved the cream, and I give her a good talkin' to. Then I sends her up to bed, and after a look round to see was the cat in her box, and the lights all out, I was for goin' up myself, when I heard a step on the front stairs.

"Not meanin' to snoop, but fearin' 'twas some interloper, I stuck me head in the door far enough to see 'twas Mr. Inman a comin' down. As he had a right to mander about the house if he chose, I shut the door softly like and went upstairs."

I thought no more about it, till you began askin' questions. And so, I thought I better out with it."

"Well," Mott hid his interest behind a look of indifference, "it may prove of some importance and it may not. You're sure it was Mr. Inman?"

"Sure, sir."

"Did he have a light?"

"No, sir, he was feelin' his way like. I could see him by the wee bit of light from the hall behind me, and I shut the door quick, so's he wouldn't see me."

"Where was he goin'?"

"I don't know, sir, except that he was comin' down the stairs. He was about half way down, a hangin' onto the banister like."

"I see, Well, Pierce, do you know anything more about the family's doings that night?"

"Only what Emma said, that she saw Miss Bunny go upstairs at half past one."

"H'm, they all seemed to be waitin' for Emma, tell me again of your seeing Miss Moore?"

"Well, sir, I was for lettin' Katie in, and then I was for gettin' back as quick as I could. And as I went up the back stairs, I saw Miss Moore comin' up the front stairs. I could see her, but I don't think she saw me—she was takin' on something fierce."

Good Thoughts for Good People

There is one body, and one Spirit, even as we are called in one hope of your calling; One Lord, one faith, one baptism, One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all.

—Paul.

I know that there is one God in heaven, the Father of all humanity, and heaven is therefore one. I know that there is one sun in the sky which gives light to all the world.

Kossuth.

Men's hearts ought not to be set against one another, but set with one another, and all against the evil thing only.

Carlyle.

One holy church, one army strong, One steadfast high intent, One working bend, one harvest song, One King Omnipotent.

Samuel Johnson.

Nothing is more binding than the friendship of companions-in-arms.

George S. Hilliard.

Our army will win its victories in proportion as its soldiers individually and unitedly attain to that unselfishness which acknowledges God as the ally and only. Surely such an army, buttressed about by everything that is holy and protective, cannot fail to go forward steadily to inevitable victories, especially as each Christian remembers that he has all power with him and nothing against him.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

FOR PRIVATE OPINION

This column is for the use of individuals who have opinions they wish to express and the Telegraph has always striven to give all possible freedom of expression to those who wish to use it, but we are often embarrassed by what we might term a "misuse" of the column.

Readers must understand that opinions expressed in "The People's Column" are not necessarily the opinion of this paper and often-times we are absolutely opposed to articles published here. They are granted space in pursuance of an effort to give individuals a voice in the public print and the spirit is one of fair play to all sides of every question.

The Telegraph does not wish, however, to be made the vehicle of unfair attacks upon individuals or groups and deplores a spirit of bigotry or intolerance. There is no room for such an attitude in America and we cannot see how any good can come from it.

Death was declared to have been due to heart failure induced by a long swim when his canoe overturned far out in Lake Michigan.

Mrs. Sherman, who was with him reached shore safely.
Mr. Sherman, long a familiar figure in the college life of the midwest through his connection with the University of Illinois, had been a summer resident here for many years. He was the author of several well known books and wrote largely for magazines during the last 15 years.

FRED G. DIMICK County Clerk Lee County, Illinois

August 4th, 1926

The Wormley Company,
Rochelle, Illinois.
Dear Sirs:

I was afflicted with stomach trouble for several years and suffered a great deal, and tried different remedies and medicines but could not get relief. I lost nearly twenty pounds in weight, could eat scarcely anything without being distressed, suffered great pain after eating and was afflicted with gastritis and indigestion. I learned of your remedy through a friend of mine and after taking a few bottles of your STOMAX RELIEF, I feel like a new man. I have gained in weight and can eat anything without being distressed.

I cheerfully recommend your remedy to any one suffering with stomach trouble.

Very truly yours,
FRED G. DIMICK.

The above letter speaks for itself.

For indigestion, gastritis, pain after eating and any other stomach disorder, the above medicine will bring relief. A noted physician's prescription. Harmless and helpful. No relief—no pay.
